Editor and reviewer comments:
Reviewer #1:
1. The title of the article suggests that the Fraud Hexagon Model is being used to analyze taxpayer compliance, but the abstract briefly mentions only "Opportunity" and "Rationalization" as influencing factors. It would be beneficial to ensure that the abstract briefly outlines how each element of the Fraud Hexagon Model (Stimulus, Opportunity, Rationalization, Capability, Ego, and Collusion) is examined in the study, giving the readers a clear understanding of the research scope from the outset.
2. While the abstract mentions that SEM and SMART PLS were used, it would be helpful to provide a brief justification or rationale for selecting these methodologies. Explain why SEM and SMART PLS were the most suitable tools for this study, as this helps readers understand the validity of the approach.
3. The abstract mentions that the study had 182 taxpayer respondents in the West Jakarta area. To enhance the relevance and impact of the study, it is important to discuss the representativeness of this sample in the abstract. Were the 182 respondents randomly selected? What is the potential for generalizing these findings beyond the West Jakarta area? Addressing these questions would make the abstract more comprehensive.
4. The keywords provided, "Internal Control System, Sales, Cash," are relatively broad. To improve the visibility of the article in relevant search queries and to provide a clearer indication of the article's focus, consider using more specific keywords that directly relate to the Fraud Hexagon Model or taxpayer compliance. This can help researchers and readers find your article more easily.
5. While the abstract mentions the factors influencing taxpayer compliance, it would be beneficial to briefly touch upon the practical implications and recommendations based on the findings. This would provide a sense of the practical significance of the research for policymakers, tax authorities, or practitioners.

I hope you can make improvements as soon as possible and send the revised article again via this email.

Dear

Krisnawati Tarigan, et al.
Universitas Kristen Krida Wacana, Indonesia

Thank you for the team's efforts to make improvements to the article.
Based on the reviewers' considerations, the article has, at some point, increased.
However, the team has to improve on a few more points. Hopefully team are willing to do it.

Please follow the following revision instructions:
#Reviewer 2:
1. In the introduction section of the paper, it would be beneficial to provide a concise yet informative explanation of the Fraud Hexagon Model. This would ensure that readers, including those who may not be familiar with this model, have a clear understanding of the framework you are using for analysis.
2. In the methodology section, elaborate on the data collection process and the instruments used to measure the variables in the Fraud Hexagon Model. This will help readers assess the validity and reliability of the data and understand how the variables were operationalized.
3. While you've discussed the factors that significantly influence taxpayer compliance, it's important to mention whether there were any control variables considered in the analysis. Discussing the control variables and their rationale will provide a more comprehensive understanding of the study's design.
4. In the discussion section, make connections with existing literature on taxpayer compliance, fraud models, or any related fields. Highlight where your findings align with or deviate from previous research. This can help readers contextualize your study within the broader academic landscape.
5. Conclude your article by suggesting potential avenues for future research. What are the unanswered questions or areas where further investigation is warranted based on your findings? This demonstrates that your work contributes to a larger body of knowledge and invites others to build upon it.

Articles that have been revised and please send them back via this email.
